Dear Judge,

The key word here is options. I don't think Microsoft has been fair in allowing other options to make themselves known. Not only would more options be present if Microsoft were held more strictly to the anti-trust laws, but also the options would be cheaper which in turn would promote spending on more computers from the consumer market. This in turn would stimulate the computer market. I am not saying that Microsoft is a bad company or that their products are bad, I would just like to see consumers treated better. Give us options!!

Thanks For Your Time,

Mr. Leader
